

Wandering spirits, bounty hunters and bandits mar the land with murder and mayhem. There is little hope for salvation and if it wasn't for a man with a mysterious past, a talking goat named Goat, and a princess named Princess, there would be no hope at all.

Bartholemoo Chronicles is a fantastical tale that begins with a curse of world destruction by a celestial being and as the war rages on Bartholemoo becomes the last safe hamlet on the planet. It is only a matter of time until it, too, is under siege and there is little hope for the future.

The first volume of the Bartholemoo Chronicles is truly poignant, vivid and surprisingly funny. Robert Guttersohn delivers keen observations on life and shares a timely message that is wrought with innuendo in a promising new fantasy series full of humorous exploits, colorful characters, and deadly perils.

"Guttersohn has created more than a fascinating story here; his characters are both memorable and intriguing, an extraordinary mix of humans and other-worldlies who drive this tale forward to its unexpected conclusion."

– Ellen Tanner Marsh, New York Times best-selling author

