

Retired social worker Laurel-Rain Snow worked for over thirty years with families in crisis. The author is the winner of the 2000 "Social Worker of the Year" award and the recipient of an Exceptional Service award. Divorced with four grown children and seven grandchildren, she lives in a small community north of Fresno, California.

Meet Merrilee. There is nothing she'd rather do than be belly-up to a paperback romance with Elvis Presley crooning in the background. She's a little soft around the edges, but hopeful in the ways of lovers and life partners. In her stardust dreams, love is simple and glorious – but in real life, love ain't easy. Neither is parenting or keeping a job. A single mother who is tested time and again, she must learn who she is in order to find the love of her dreams and keep it.

From the author of An Accidental Life and Embrace the Whirlwind, comes this tale full of rare compassion and insight. Chasing Stardust is one of the finest fictional explorations of the complexities of family love, a lyrical look at the everyday, ordinary world and the wild, wild ride that is life.
